

2012 American Conference Institute's Advanced Forum on LPL/Legal Malpractice Claims and Litigation

Join an unparalleled faculty of leading insurance professionals, counsel specializing in LPL, law firm risk managers and renowned jurists to ensure that you are fully protected against emerging risks and prepared to defend against the latest legal malpractice claims.

Continuing fallout from the implosion of the real estate market, the wave of bankruptcies and Ponzi schemes and the broader state of the economy has led to increasing lawsuits against attorneys by frustrated clients. Additionally, the use of electronic communication, cloud computing and social media brings new retention, network security and privacy risks. Attorneys and law firms must stay ahead of the curve to avoid unnecessary exposure to risk and successfully defend against the newest deluge of legal malpractice claims.

ACI's Advanced Forum on LPL/Legal Malpractice Claims and Litigation is designed to offer insurers, brokers, attorneys and other risk management professionals valuable insight into how to prevent, manage and defend against the most current legal malpractice claims. Get the inside scoop from judges on the latest malpractice claims brought against attorneys as well as from leaders in the insurance industry.

On Thursday, May 31 at 2:50 pm, KD's Brett Scher will be sitting on a panel called "Defending Allegations Related to Ponzi Schemes, FDIC Bank Failure Claims, FDCPA Debt Collection Claims and Beyond" with the following additional panelists: Shauna Reeder (Assistant Vice President, CNA Insurance), Brian Braden (Vice President, Crum & Forster), and Richard A. Simpson (Partner, Wiley Rein LLP).

Some of the topics this panel will address include:

- Defending against LPL claims relating to Ponzi and other fraudulent schemes
- FDIC bank failure claims
- Debt collection claims based on FDCPA violations
- Non-mortgage related securities claims
