

Article "Falls Remain a Leading Safety Problem, Still Need Attention," in Healthcare Risk Management, features Partner Christopher Brown, 6-2024

Risk managers must not let their guard down on the perennial patient safety concern of falls, looking to the proven methods of prevention and the sometimes simple steps that can have significant effect.

Use Appropriate Rounding

Falls are an unfortunate outcome that are never fully preventable, but they can be mitigated, says Christopher E. Brown, JD, partner at Kaufman Dolowich law firm in Orlando. Please see full article at link.