Christopher Nucifora, managing partner of KD's New Jersey office, has been quoted in a Law360 article published April 8, 2015. In the article, Christopher comments on the implications of the FCC's second action involving data security regulation.

"One issue that all companies should be wary of is the data security policies and procedures of its vendors," said Christopher Nucifora, chairman of the technology practice group at Kaufman Dolowich & Voluck LLP. "In preparing agreements with vendors handling a company's customer and other protected data, it is very important to become familiar with the data security policies and practices of the vendor."
