Kaufman Dolowich & Voluck LLP has absorbed White Plains, New York-based competitor Babchik & Young LLP in a continued expansion in Westchester, the firm announced. Kaufman Dolowich is bulking up in its traditional areas of labor and professional liability with the addition of five partners, six other attorneys and four staff from Babchik and hopes to capture the smaller firm's long-established client base in Westchester and Connecticut.

"This is transformative for KD strategically and professionally," co-managing partner Ivan J. Dolowich said in a statement Friday. "It solidifies our New York presence with expanded reach in Westchester and Rockland counties and upstate New York, in addition to our offices in New York City and Long Island. It also enhances so many of our core practice areas with experienced, client-focused attorneys and opens up opportunities for attorney and client growth." For the full article click the link below.
