

Lawyers Weigh In On High Court's Recess Appointment Ruling, Law360 ft. Jeffery Meyer

Law360, New York (June 26, 2014, 7:49 PM ET) — The U.S. Supreme Court on Thursday struck down President Barack Obama's three recess appointments to the National Labor Relations Board, but took a broad view of the president's appointment power. Here, attorneys tell Law360 why the decision in National Labor Relations Board v. Noel Canning is significant.