Marijuana in the Workplace, Today's General Counsel

By Philip R. Voluck, managing partner of the KD Blue Bell office and Jennifer L. Prior, KD attorney

Business across the country are confronting escalating drug use in the workplace by their employees. Underlying this problem is the use of marijuana lawfully prescribed by physicians for medical issues, and the conflict between state and federal law. It will not be resolved anytime soon, leaving employers in a quandary regarding their ability to control the use of marijuana by employees during working hours.
